I wish to object strongly to any plans to further extend the reuse of plutonium in spent fuel until the results of the Fukushima disaster and the part MOX played in particular in radiation release from spent fuel storage.

I have for many years warned of the inherent dangers of MOX fuel because of the potential of terrorist attack during fuel transport, spent fuel storage and transport.

Emeritus Professor Keith Barnham