

At last week's meeting you asked for general comments in relation to 'personal licences'..

Our thoughts are, and this is just a general view on the matter –

- The licence should be a 1 or 3 year licence
- The fee should be appropriate to cover all costs
- There should be a requirement to notify issuing Councils of convictions, by licence holder
- There should be a review mechanism for convictions/complaints and this should be delegated to officers (an increase in volume of sub-committee hearings has unnecessary cost implications)
- Enhanced CRB would be more sensible than the current basic.

Hope this helps, I've not gone into precise detail, just a flavour of where we think this should go.
