Q8. In the alcohol strategy, the government committed to introducing a minimum unit price for alcohol in England and Wales. This consultation will contribute to the debate on the most appropriate price per unit and the mechanism by which, once set, minimum unit pricing would remain effective. It is also an opportunity for interested parties to raise other issues around minimum unit pricing. The purpose of minimum unit pricing is to reduce alcohol consumption, particularly by the most hazardous and harmful drinkers who tend to show a preference for the cheapest alcohol products. By doing so the government estimates there will be a reduction in the associated crime and health harms, especially the numbers of hospital admissions, alcohol-related deaths and alcohol-related crimes. Minimum unit pricing is not intended disproportionately to affect responsible drinkers or particular social groups but to reduce the availability of alcohol sold at very low or heavily discounted prices. More information (including the definitions of hazardous and harmful drinkers) is available in the full consultation document and the impact assessment. Do you want to answer questions on minimum unit pricing? Please select one option.

Q9. The impact of minimum unit pricing will depend on the price per unit of alcohol. The government wants to ensure that the chosen price level is targeted and proportionate, whilst achieving a significant reduction of harm. The government is therefore consulting on the introduction of a recommended minimum unit price of 45p. The government estimates a reduction in consumption across all product types of 3.3 per cent, a reduction in crime of 5,240 per year, a reduction in 24,600 alcohol-related hospital admissions and 714 fewer deaths per year after ten years. Do you agree that this minimum unit price level would achieve these aims? Please select one option.

No

If you think another level would be preferable, please set out your views on why this might be in the box below (keeping your views to a maximum of 200 words):

White Ribbon Association believes something needs to be done about the low cost of alcohol, and minimum unit pricing would appear to be the fairest way. However we also consider that the proposed .45p per unit is insufficient and should at least be in line with Scotland at .50p per unit to avoid confusion and more importantly 'booze cruising' across the border. There is already evidence that a unit of alcohol can be cheaper than bottled water. We have asked people of all ages for their opinion about this and they have expressed annoyance of the high cost of alcohol free alternatives and bottled water in comparison. In addition, White Ribbon Association considers the low cost of alcohol is a major factor of binge drinking and alcohol related disorder within towns and cities nationwide. The rate of current and projected rate of inflation needs to be accounted for when setting the MUP as .45p per unit may not reflect the intended significant difference .

Q10. Should other factors or evidence be considered when setting a minimum unit price for alcohol? Please select one option.

Yes

If yes, please specify these in the box below (keeping your views to a maximum of 200 words):

Other factors should also be considered, such as what methods have worked in countries who have already introduced such schemes. What safeguards are to be put in place to monitor the increase in 'booze cruises' across the border to Scotland and to the Continent? How will minimum unit pricing control the discounted alcohol offers in supermarkets? From conversations with people, particularly those with alcohol dependency problems, the issue of easy access to alcohol within stores is a concern. Display restrictions in stores should be introduced with a controlled area for purchase, (as there is for tobacco products), and was in place before the current Licensing Act was introduced. How will home brewing and illegal alcohol production/sales be regulated? White Ribbon Association believes this could become a significant issue when MUP is introduced.

Q11. The government wishes to maintain the effectiveness of minimum unit pricing and is therefore proposing to adjust the minimum unit price level over time. How do you think the level of minimum unit price set by the government should be adjusted over time? Please select one option.

The minimum unit price should be reviewed after a set period

Q12. The aim of minimum unit pricing is to reduce the consumption of harmful and hazardous drinkers, while minimising the impact on responsible drinkers. Do you think that there are any other people, organisations or groups that could be particularly affected by a minimum unit price for alcohol? Please select one option.

Yes

If yes, please specify in the box below (keeping your views to a maximum of 100 words):

White Ribbon Association is concerned MUP would not deter an alcoholic from drinking; they, and those on low incomes or benefits, may turn to theft, the black market or home brewing, involving the police, probation, health and other services. 'Hazardous and responsible drinkers' information is confusing and does not state people require alcohol free days. Drinking within the daily unit guidelines every day exceeds the weekly allowance and therefore 'hazardous'. Using units as a measurement of drinking behaviour is not beneficial as most people are often unaware of how many units are in a drink served in a glass.

Page 4: A ban on multi-buy promotions in the off-trade

Q13. The government is consulting on introducing a ban on multi-buy promotions in the off-trade (e.g. shops and off-licences) as part of its wider strategy to reduce excessive alcohol consumption, and alongside the introduction of a minimum unit price. A ban on multi-buy promotions would therefore not apply to pubs, clubs, bars or restaurants. The term 'multi-buy promotions' refers to alcohol promotions that offer a discount for buying multiple items. The aim of a ban would be to stop promotions that encourage people to buy more than they otherwise would, making it cheaper (per item) to purchase more than one of a product than to purchase a single item. As well as being part of a wider strategy to reduce consumption and tackle irresponsible alcohol sales, a ban on multi-buy promotions would also contribute to the government's aim of encouraging people to be aware of how much they drink and the risks of excessive drinking, so that they can make informed choices. The aim of this consultation is to assess support for such a ban and contribute to our understanding of the impact a ban on multi-buy promotions may have. The types of promotion it is proposed that a ban would include, are: two for the price of one, three for the price of two, buy one get one free, buy six and get 20 per cent off, 24 cans of lager costing less than 24 times the cost of a single can of lager in the shop, a case of wine sold cheaper than the individual price at which the same bottles are sold in the shop, 3 for £10 where each bottle costs more than £3.33. More information is available in the full consultation document and the impact assessment. Do you want to answer questions on a ban on multi-buy promotions in the off-trade? Q17. The aim of a ban on multi-buy promotions is to stop promotions that encourage people to buy more than they otherwise would, helping people to be aware of how much they drink, and to tackle irresponsible alcohol sales. Do you think that there are any other groups that could be particularly affected by a ban on multi-buy promotions? Please select one option.

Yes

If yes, please specify in the box below (keeping your views to a maximum of 100 words):

White Ribbon Association considers that on trade premises should be included in this ban. Currently there is a regulation that states no irresponsible promotions are allowed with the mandatory licensing conditions. However the word 'irresponsible' does not have a clear definition within this legislation and is therefore misunderstood, leading to multi buy promotions being offered within the on trade premises.

Page 6: Reviewing the mandatory licensing conditions

Q18. In its response to the 'Rebalancing the Licensing Act' consultation in 2010, the government committed to review the impact of the current mandatory licensing conditions. More recently, the alcohol strategy made a commitment to review these mandatory licensing conditions to ensure they are sufficiently targeting problems such as irresponsible promotions in pubs and clubs. The government has also committed to consult on whether these mandatory licensing conditions should, where relevant, apply to both the on- and off-trade. This consultation forms part of that review, and will contribute to the government's understanding of how these mandatory conditions are perceived. The five mandatory licensing conditions currently set out in regulations in relation to the supply of alcohol are: a ban on irresponsible promotions a ban on dispensing alcohol by one person directly into the mouth of another a requirement to provide free tap water on request to customers a requirement to have an age verification policy to prevent the sale of alcohol to persons under 18 years of age, and a requirement to make available to customers small measures such as half pints or beer or cider or 125ml glasses of wine More information is available in the full consultation document. An explanation of each of these terms can be found on page 20 of the consultation document, in the glossary at the end. Q20. Do you think that the mandatory licensing conditions do enough to target irresponsible promotions in pubs and clubs? Please select one option.

No

If no, please state what more could be done in the box below (keeping your views to a maximum of 100 words):

We do not consider the general public is sufficiently aware of all of the licensing conditions especially the provision of free tap water and of smaller measures. Letters and articles from our members highlight concerns about on trade drink promotions; the expression 'irresponsible promotions' is vague and needs clarification to be effective. There needs to be further regulation regarding advertising of drinks deals. We consider that all drinking games should be banned, not only games directly dispensing alcohol into the mouth; drinking games are primarily aimed at the younger generation and encourage binge drinking and getting drunk quickly.

Q21. Are there other issues related to the licensing objectives which could be tackled through a mandatory licensing condition? Please select one option.

Yes

If yes, please specify in the box below (keeping your views to a maximum of 200 words):

White Ribbon Association has concerns regarding the rise in energy drinks mixed with alcohol. The consumption of energy drinks with alcohol (mixing a stimulant with a depressant) is reputedly causing hospital admissions particularly among young people, who are unaware of the dangers and we regularly do awareness sessions with young people concerning this issue. Regulation of energy drinks in pubs/clubs, in a similar way to the industry self-regulation of mixes like snakebite, may be helpful.

Q22. Do you think that the current approach, with five mandatory licensing conditions applying to the on-trade and only one of those to the off-trade, is appropriate? Please select one option.

No

If no, please explain why you think the current approach is not the best approach (keeping your views to a maximum of 100 words):

A lack of a ban on 'irresponsible promotions' in the off-trade seems incongruous. Excessive drinking can take place at home as easily as in social settings. On-trade restrictions will help reduce problematic social drinking, but off-trade restrictions need to match it to aid other types of drinkers. The ability to sell smaller measures of alcohol may be useful in the off-trade, preventing over-indulgence.

Page 8: Health as a licensing objective for cumulative impact policies

Q23. We want to ensure that licensing authorities are able to take alcohol-related health harms into consideration when making decisions about cumulative impact policies (CIPs) which can be used to manage problems linked to the density of premises in specific areas. A CIP introduces a rebuttable presumption that all new licence applications and variations in that area will normally be refused if the licensing authority receives a relevant representation stating that the application will add to the cumulative impact. However each application must still be considered on its own merits and the licensing authority may still grant the application if it is satisfied that the application will not contribute to the cumulative impact. We are proposing that licensing authorities will be able to take evidence of alcohol-related health harm into account in deciding whether to introduce a CIP and the extent of that CIP. This would be a discretionary power and not an obligation. We expect that those areas with the highest levels of alcohol-related health harm, or fast rising levels of harm from alcohol, will be most likely to use this power. It will allow local health bodies to fully contribute to local decision making and mean licensing authorities can restrict the number of licensed premises in the local area on the basis of robust local evidence. More information is available in the full consultation document and impact assessment. Do you want to answer questions on health as a licensing objective for cumulative impact policies? Q24. What sources of evidence on alcohol-related health harm could be used to support the introduction of a cumulative impact policy (CIP) if it were possible for a CIP to include consideration of health? Please specify in the box below (keeping your views to a maximum of 200 words):

Crucial data with regard to alcohol-related health harm should be obtained from:
Ambulance and Police statistics
Walk-In Centres
A&E
Social Services
Drug and alcohol support and treatment services
Schools/colleges/university data
Homeless services

Q25. Do you think any aspects of the current cumulative impact policy process would need to be amended to allow consideration of data on alcohol-related health harms? Please select one option.

Yes

If yes, please specify which aspects in the box below (keeping your views to a maximum of 200 words):

To allow health data from a less specific area to be submitted as evidence in a CIP. Health issues would not be geographically linked so would allow for a broader range of evidence in support would make sense.

Q26. What impact do you think allowing consideration of data on alcohol-related health harms when introducing a cumulative impact policy would have if it were used in your local area? Please specify your answer in the box below, providing evidence to support your response (keeping your views to a maximum of 200 words):

Including health data would benefit the local area when introducing a CIP. It shows the issues surrounding the area in a more holistic way and also includes the on going issues rather than the issues surrounding that night. Some issues from an incident do not arise until a few days later when some of this data would pick up the issue. It would allow consideration of health-harms that may not take place within an exact area, e.g. Solihull and Birmingham - may start drinking in one location and be hospitalised in another. People move between locations and it would make sense to be able to look more holistically at the area rather than concentrating on one area to which people are not limited.

Q27. The government has committed to consult on giving licensing authorities greater freedom to take decisions that reflect the needs of their local community. Following the government's Red Tape Challenge in 2011, three areas of reform were specified: alcohol licensing for certain types of premises providing minimal alcohol sales, temporary event notices (TENs) and the licensing of late night refreshment. This section asks for views on these proposals and suggests further ways to reduce burdens on business. The proposals set out here can be seen alongside work undertaken by the Department for Culture, Media and Sport to remove unnecessary red tape from regulated entertainment. More information on each of these areas for reform is available in the full consultation document. There are five subjects covered in this section. They are: ancillary sales of alcohol, occasional provision of licensable activities at community events, an extension of the temporary event notice limit at individual premises, late night refreshment, and further proposals to reduce burdens on business. Q28. Ancillary sales of alcohol For many businesses, the sale of alcohol is only a small part of, or incidental to, their wider activities, and occurs alongside the provision of another product or service (which this consultation refers to as an 'ancillary sale'). For example, a guesthouse might wish to provide wine to its guests with an evening meal or a complimentary bottle of wine in a guest's room, while a hairdresser might wish to offer clients a glass of wine. Should special provision to reduce the burdens on ancillary sellers be limited to specific types of business, and/or be available to all types of business, providing they meet certain qualification criteria for limited or incidental sales? Q31. The aim of a new 'ancillary seller' status is to reduce burdens on businesses where the sale of alcohol is only a small part of their business and occurs alongside the provision of a wider product or service, while minimising loopholes for irresponsible businesses and maintaining the effectiveness of enforcement. Alternatively, a second option is to broaden the definition of 'ancillary sales' to include all businesses (and/or not for profit activities) through the use of a general set of qualification criteria, for example, to the effect that: alcohol must be sold or supplied as a small part or proportion of a sales transaction or contract for a wider service, and the amount of alcohol that could be supplied as part of that contract cannot exceed a prescribed amount. Do you think that the qualification criteria proposed meet this aim?

No

Please use the space below to provide further comments (keeping your views to a maximum of 200 words):

White Ribbon Association has concerns about the enforcement of these measures if ancillary sales were deregulated. How would sales/promotions be monitored? Who would be responsible if the conditions weren't met? The question which needs to be asked: 'is alcohol really needed in this setting?' We understand the reason why the government is considering reducing the red tape for these businesses as there maybe some businesses already serving complimentary drinks with their product without a licence as it is not seen by them as selling alcohol. The law needs to be clearer to these people and the protection of harm to children and vulnerable adult's needs to be accounted for. We would have concerns that if a designated person was removed then who would take responsibility. There needs to be some training for these businesses to address the licensing conditions and objectives.
