

Location of UK weather stations measuring the average monthly rainfall

● Stations that are given greater weighting (98 per cent of total) when calculating the UK average monthly rainfall, since they are located in regions that have greater share of UK hydro-electricity generation capacity.