As conflict continues in Syria, millions of people are in desperate need of assistance. The UK has committed £600 million to provide support including food, medical care and relief items for over a million people in Syria and the region.

The results below for 'Support Inside Syria' and for 'Support to the Region' describe £541 million of UK humanitarian aid already allocated to partners responding to the crisis.

Allocations to partners of the remainder are currently being finalised. Additional results will be incorporated into this summary as new allocations to partners are made.

SUPPORT INSIDE SYRIA

The UK has committed £249 million of assistance to help people affected by the conflict across Syria, including in opposition held and contested areas.

Food

UK aid has provided food for over 210,000 people a month across Syria through our partner the World Food Programme (WFP).

Water

UK funding has already delivered water purification supplies and repairs to water infrastructure benefiting over 1,400,000 people. Our partner UNICEF is repairing water systems, trucking water and dispensing water purification tablets to provide clean drinking water to Syrian families.

Coordination

UK funding has helped the UN strengthen security and humanitarian coordination mechanisms inside Syria through OCHA and UNDSS. In addition, UK aid to WFP has enabled the organisation to enhance its food storage facilities and security management procedures.

Shelter and relief items

Through UNHCR and others the UK has funded the supply of relief items (such as cooking sets, blankets, mattresses etc.) to over 305,000 persons affected by the violence. The UK has also funded improvements to buildings accommodating displaced people. New funding to IOM will provide an additional 65,000 displaced people with essential relief items.

Health

UK support to WHO will provide vulnerable Syrians with essential access to comprehensive health services. WHO are also supporting trauma systems, delivering essential supplies and augmenting health systems to respond to outbreaks of diseases. Across Syria the UK has already funded over 244,000 medical consultations to critically injured and sick people.

Livelihoods

UK support through FAO will provide poultry and vegetable seeds to 6,000 households. It will also instruct 240 community trainers to support Syrians in improved farming methods.

“Where aid is getting through to hundreds of thousands of people, it can be the difference between life and death. The UK has led the way in responding to this crisis so far and we will continue to stand alongside the Syrian people in their time of need”

*- Justine Greening,
UK International Development Secretary*

SUPPORT IN THE REGION

The UK has allocated £292 million to help Syrian refugees and host communities in the region.

Food

UK assistance has provided food to up to 320,000 people per month to refugees in Jordan, Lebanon, Turkey and Iraq.

Water

Through UNICEF, the UK will provide safe drinking water and sanitation services (toilets and latrines) to over 213,500 people in Jordan, Lebanon and Iraq in camps and in communities hosting Syrian refugees.

Health

The UK has provided significant medical care to Syrian refugees and to vulnerable host communities in Jordan and Lebanon. To date the UK has funded over 71,500 medical consultations.

In Jordan, UK support will mean that vulnerable Syrian refugees and host communities can get essential access to comprehensive health services through WHO, as well as supporting trauma systems, delivering essential supplies, and preparing health systems so they can best respond to outbreaks of communicable diseases.

UK support to UNICEF is helping to provide toilets, showers and waste management services to refugee camps in Jordan, Lebanon and Iraq. It is also providing support for 25,000 children in Jordan, including psychosocial care. The UK is also funding water and sanitation services for over 27,000 refugees across the region through UNHCR.

Livelihoods

UK support to FAO in Lebanon will support over 3000 households with agricultural livelihoods through training, animal feed and vaccinations.

Shelter

Across the region, UK funding aid has helped to deliver a range of shelter/essential relief item supplies, more than 84,600, to Syrian refugees and to communities hosting Syrians displaced by the violence.

In Jordan, the UK has provided cash assistance, funding for winter items, clothing and blankets for over 10,000 Syrian refugees and vulnerable Jordanian families through the Danish Refugee Council (DRC). UK assistance to the DRC is also providing emergency cash assistance for 36,000 refugees in Jordan.

In Lebanon, UK funding to Save the Children will provide shelter, assistance and financial support to 4,000 people. UK financial assistance to the Norwegian Refugee Council will provide shelter to 11,500 people and access to legal aid to 13,700 Syrian and Palestinian refugees.

Coordination

The UK has funded experts to work in humanitarian agencies and help make the humanitarian response more effective. These include a shelter expert in UNHCR in Lebanon, water and sanitation expert in UNICEF in Iraq, and a humanitarian adviser working with the Government of Lebanon.

SUPPORT TO VULNERABLE GROUPS

The impact of humanitarian crises is often borne disproportionately by vulnerable groups including women and children. Such vulnerable groups are a priority for the UK humanitarian assistance and protection programmers. Some examples include:

Children

Children are among the most at risk in the ongoing Syrian conflict, and over 50% of refugees are under 18 years of age. One example of support the UK is providing is to UNICEF's work in Syria and in the region for psychosocial support services and child protection for 15,000 of the most vulnerable Syrian children and their carers, as well as counselling services for refugee children in neighbouring countries.

Conflict often seriously disrupts children's education. One intervention UK support is providing is through UNICEF, the UK is providing education for 1,000 refugee children, as well as training teachers, and providing educational supplies to schools. We are also funding language lessons for 700 children to help them overcome the barriers preventing them from getting the most out of school.

In Iraq, the UK has also provided clothing to over 4,700 affected children through Save the Children.

Women and girls

The crisis has placed many women and girls at risk of violence, exploitation and insecurity. Due to conflict and population displacement many of the most vulnerable households are increasingly supported by women, who often lack the assets to meet their needs and those of their children. The UK has provided cash assistance to help female refugees in Jordan pay rent through the Danish Refugee Council. Through FAO we are providing livelihoods support to women including: training, hens, feed, seeds and tools.

Pregnant women are particularly at risk, and the UK is providing new-born kits for over 200 mothers and pregnant women in Iraq, and reproductive health services for nearly 6000 women in Jordan. We are also providing financial support to 1,800 vulnerable Syrian women who are thought to be at risk of coerced marriage, to help reduce their risk of exploitation. Our partner International Rescue Committee (IRC) is providing cash assistance to 700 vulnerable women and girls.

Host communities

Communities in neighbouring countries have been extraordinarily generous in hosting vulnerable Syrian refugees. The UK recognises that this is putting an enormous strain on their resources and we are supporting refugee hosting communities through the humanitarian assistance programme. For example, in Jordan, the UK is funding WHO including to increase the access to comprehensive health services for Syrian refugees and vulnerable Jordanians and to improve the national and local public health coordination and emergency response management framework under the Jordanian Ministry of Health's leadership.

Palestinian refugees

There is a large population of Palestinian refugees living in Syria and the region, who are particularly vulnerable to conflict. UK funding is supporting UNRWA in their work with Palestinian refugees affected by the violence. This funding will provide support for over 350,000 Palestinian refugees in Syria, Lebanon and Jordan, including food parcels and relief items such as blankets and hygiene packs.

Survivors of trauma

Conflict can cause severe psychological harm, and the UK is providing funding for clinical care and counselling. This includes support to 12,000 Syrian men, women and children in Jordan who have experienced trauma including sexual violence.
