

Iraq Historic Allegations Team: Work completed

IHAT Investigation Number	Review/Investigation Result
IHAT/82	The IHAT has carried out enquiries to establish the circumstances surrounding the death of 57-year-old Mohammed Al Kanaan in April 2003. Mr Al Kanaan was arrested by British Forces and taken to Camp Freddy, near Umm Qasr, 44 miles south of Basrah. The IHAT investigation has established that whilst in custody, Mr Al Kanaan experienced heart problems. He was taken to a medical facility at Al Zubayr Port, but doctors were unable to save him. It has been decided that there is no criminal case to answer in this instance.
IHAT/083	This investigation concerned an allegation relating to the death of a Prisoner of War in April 2003. He was shot during an altercation in the compound and died of his wounds. IHAT concluded that there was no British involvement in this case as the prisoner of war camp was under the control of the US military forces. The IHAT will seek to establish contact with the relevant US investigative agency to discuss the possible handing-over of the case to US authorities.
IHAT/084	The IHAT was tasked to review an RAF Police investigation into an allegation relating to the death of a Prisoner of War (PoW). He died whilst being transported along with nine other PoWs in an RAF helicopter to a Coalition base. The review has been completed and presented to the RAF Police for consideration. Provost Marshal (Royal Air Force) has directed further investigation.
IHAT/ 85	The investigation into the death of Mr Ahmed Jabaar Kareem Ali considered an allegation that the deceased drowned on 8 May 2003, as a result of the behaviour of the British soldiers who had detained him earlier that day. The decision has been made to discontinue any further work on the case after the investigation identified there was no prospect of gaining any new or compelling evidence to go any way to altering a previous decision made by the courts martial. All material gathered during the course of the investigation will be passed to the MOD for its decision as to whether there should be any further, non-criminal, inquiry into the circumstances of his death.
IHAT/96	On 29 April 2003, a Mr Atheer Kareem Khalaf was shot by a British soldier in an incident at a petrol station in Basra; he died the following day as a result of the injuries. It was subsequently alleged that this shooting was unlawful. The IHAT has reviewed the original investigation and the JCRP identified some

	focussed lines of enquiry, however, IHAT investigations produced no new evidence. Furthermore, the evidence provided by witnesses at the scene was contradictory and inconsistent. The decision has been taken that the evidential sufficiency test for a charge of murder or manslaughter against a member of British forces has not been met and therefore this case has not been referred under section 116 (2) of the act.
IHAT/097	In April 2011 the Mail on Sunday sent the Ministry of Defence's media centre video footage showing the apparent abuse of an Iraqi man by British servicemen. One of those soldiers was identified and interviewed by IHAT investigators. He admitted to being responsible. He was subsequently referred by IHAT to his Commanding Officer and was fined £3,000 after a Summary Hearing.
IHAT/105	During the course of an IHAT review an email was recovered which raised concerns about RAF training in the appropriate use of hooding, blindfolding and the restraining of prisoners through the use of collar and rope. Following an investigation IHAT concluded that there was no evidence to suggest that this inappropriate training was conducted by anyone other than one individual trainer. The IHAT report was forwarded to the RAF Police.
IHAT/106	In March 2011 information was received by the IHAT that whilst on a routine patrol in the desert a serving soldier had been involved in the 'mock execution' of an Iraqi. An investigation was conducted and an interview under caution undertaken with the suspect. There was insufficient evidence to refer the case to prosecutors. Should any other information come to light the investigation could be reopened.
IHAT/107	This investigation was launched after an email from the IHAT to RMP personnel asking for anyone who had witnessed ill treatment in Iraq to get in touch resulted in a member of the RMP responding to say that during his tour on Telic 2 he witnessed 'hooding'. Due to the status of the individual and the nature of his response the IHAT interviewed him under caution. He confirmed that on one occasion he had witnessed two hooded detainees and that he questioned the use of hooding at the time. He was told the individuals were militia and that it was done for security reasons. It was decided that, with regards this individual, the evidential sufficiency test had not been met and the investigation has

	been discontinued pending any further information coming to light.
IHAT/ 120	On 6 November 2003, British soldiers acting on information suggesting armed men had been seen entering a property in Basrah, went to search a house. In the course of gaining entry to the premises they were confronted by two armed men, one of whom was shot and died the next day as a result of his injury. The IHAT have investigated the resulting allegation of unlawful killing and after careful consideration of this information and liaison with the Service Prosecuting Authority, it has been decided that there is no evidence to suggest the soldier was not acting in self defence. The criminal investigation has therefore been discontinued.
IHAT/123	In May 2003 an Iraqi boy was killed by unexploded ordnance when it detonated as he was playing outside. The origin and the type of ordnance are unknown. It has been decided that in light of the circumstances of the incident, there are no further lines of enquiry for the IHAT to pursue in regards to identifying whether a crime has been committed by a British service person in this case.
IHAT/124	This investigation considered an allegation that an 8-year-old girl was shot dead by UK soldiers during the 'Battle of Danny Boy' on 14 May 2014. The complainant (the older brother of the deceased) has since admitted that he lied in statements given to the Royal Military Police and those given in evidence to the Al Sweady Public Inquiry; he accepted his sister was not shot during this battle. It has been decided, therefore, there is no criminal allegation to investigate and the decision has been taken to discontinue further enquiries by the IHAT.
IHAT/134	This case concerned the alleged unlawful killing of Mr Lafteh Ahmed Awdeh in September 2003. IHAT investigators have examined the claim that Mr Awdeh was killed in a road traffic collision involving a British Army truck but can find no evidence, such as records of British troops being in or near the area at the time, to support the allegation. Requests to PIL to supply further information have not been answered and so with no reasonable or proportionate lines of enquiry identified, it has been decided to discontinue the investigation.
IHAT/136	This investigation considered the alleged unlawful killing of Hilal Fanjan Salman, who was working as a guard/caretaker at Al Ma'qil Preparatory school for Girls, opposite Basra Old Port, when he was shot dead. The incident happened on 3 October 2003, a day upon which

	there had been a disturbance with reports of up to 2,000 people involved. British troops were deployed to assist Coalition Provincial Authority and local police. At some point during the operation a man (Mr Salman) armed with an AK47 rifle, was seen on the roof of the school, four soldiers admitted to firing at the man who they believed to be a threat to them. Although there is no dispute that the deceased was shot and killed by one of the soldiers, it is not (and is highly unlikely to be) possible to say which of the soldiers fired the fatal shot. Additionally, given the circumstances, in the absence of compelling and reliable witness evidence to the contrary, it is deemed likely that a prosecution would be unable to disprove self-defence in this case. In light of this it has been decided there are no longer any reasonable and proportionate lines of enquiry to pursue in this case as a criminal investigation.
IHAT/141	This was an investigation into the alleged unlawful shooting of a young Iraqi man in April 2007. Ali Salam Abdul Hasan (aged 18) died on 10 April 2007; the day British forces launched an operation responding to continued assaults on their base at Basra Palace. The IHAT team considered the available information and discovered that although his death was certified at Basra hospital, no post mortem was conducted and there were no eye witnesses to the incident. It was impossible to identify what type of ammunition killed Mr Hasan because during the course of the military operation, British forces came under fire from armed militia and a large amount and variety of ammunition was expended by both sides. Therefore it has not been possible to establish whether he was shot by British soldiers or Iraqi militia. These factors combined to make it impossible to identify any viable lines of enquiry. Additionally, there was little prospect of gaining sufficient evidence to meet the evidential sufficiency test to justify a charge of murder or manslaughter and as a result it was decided to discontinue the investigation.
IHAT/144	In Dec 2004 a patrol opened fire on a vehicle they suspected to be a Vehicle Borne Improvised Explosive Device (VBIED). The driver, an off duty Iraqi police officer was killed. This incident occurred at a time when the security threat assessment of a VBIED attack was high. Careful consideration was given to what investigative opportunities existed in this case. No other vehicle stopped at the scene for some time after the incident, therefore this case offers no viable lines of enquiry to challenge the account given by the patrol.
IHAT/147	This investigation came to light after a soldier bragged to two British female civilians that he had been involved in the deaths

	of two unknown Iraqis. This allegation had previously been investigated and subsequently discontinued by the RMP in July 2004. A pre-investigation assessment undertaken by the IHAT did not identify any further information than that already held by the RMP and consequently, the decision has been taken that with no criminal offence being identified, the IHAT discontinued any further work on this case.
IHAT/176	This case concerned the death of Mr Hamid Al-Sweady during what came to be known as the 'Battle of Danny Boy', on 14 May 2004. The deceased's uncle, Mr Khudar Kareem Ashoor, alleged his nephew had been unlawfully killed. Mr Al-Sweady's death was one of a number which occurred during the same battle and which were examined in the widely publicised Al Sweady Public Inquiry, chaired by Sir Thayne Forbes. Sir Thayne heard oral evidence from Mr Ashoor during the course of the inquiry. At its conclusion he stated that Mr Ashoor had made false and wholly unfounded allegations Sir Thayne also concluded that all those who died at the battle were actively engaged in combat at the time of their deaths. There being no criminal offence identified in this case, the IHAT decided to discontinue any further work on it.
