1. What are registration numbers?

Registration numbers are a way of identifying vehicles. All registration numbers are owned by the Secretary of State and are allocated to vehicles (and may be withdrawn) as part of the process of registering and taxing vehicles.

2. Displaying registration numbers

Registration numbers must be correctly displayed in line with the law. You must go to a Registered Number Plate Supplier (RNPS) to get a number plate. The list of RNPS suppliers is available from www.gov.uk/number-plate-supplier

If you do not keep to the law relating to the style, size and spacing of letters and numbers on number plates, you could be fined up to £1000 and the registration number may be permanently withdrawn from use.

You can get more information on spacing in leaflet Vehicle registration numbers and number plates (INF104) – which you can download from www.gov.uk

You cannot use a registration number to make your vehicle appear younger than it actually is.

3. Where can you get a personalised registration number?

Driver & Vehicle Licensing Agency

Personalised Registrations

We have our own sales scheme, offering a range of registration numbers which have never been issued. Through this scheme you can buy the right to have a particular registration number assigned (put on) to a vehicle.

Visit our website at www.dvlaregistrations.direct.gov.uk to see what personalised registrations we have available and how much they cost. Our prices start from £250, and include VAT and the 'assignment fee' (this is the fee we charge to put the registration number on a vehicle). When you are ready, you can buy online 24 hours a day.

We hold five traditional auctions and three timed auctions each year.

Full details of each auction are advertised in the press and on our website. If you would like more information about our auctions, please go to www.dvlaregistrations.direct.gov.uk

Registration numbers bought under our sales scheme can only be used on vehicles that are registered (or about to be registered), taxed or being taxed or has a SORN in force at the time of application and used in the UK.

4. What do you get for your money?

You buy the right to have the registration number assigned to a vehicle registered in your name, or in the name of another person (the Nominee).

The Nominee has no right to the registration number until it is assigned to their vehicle.

We will send you a 'Certificate of Entitlement' (V750). This will include details of:

- the registration number;
- the Purchaser and Nominee; and
- the date the right to assign the registration number will end (see section 8).

You can extend the right for a further 10 years. You can apply up to 28 days prior to its expiry. You can add (if you do not have one), or change a Nominee up until or at the same time the registration number is assigned. More details about this are on the V750.

5. Where else can you get a registration number?

Dealers in registration numbers advertise in the national press or specialist magazines and many have their own website. They may sell registration numbers from their stock or act as an agent for motorists who want to sell the registration number from their vehicle. Dealers may also sell registration numbers that they have bought from us, but they are not acting on behalf of DVLA.

6. What happens if you want to sell your vehicle which has a personalised registration number?

Do not sell or get rid of your vehicle before you move the personalised registration number to your new vehicle (transfer it) or put it on hold (retain it).

If you get rid of your vehicle before we give you a new V5C with a replacement registration number, the personalised registration number will pass to the new registered keeper.

We either, identify (assign) a vehicle with a registration number, or hold it for the registered keeper, it is not “personal property”. The registered keeper is the only person who has the right to apply to transfer or retain the registration number. So remember, when you want to sell your vehicle displaying a personalised plate “if you don’t move it... you’ll lose it”.

7. Transferring and retaining (keep the use of) registration numbers

Transferring a registration number

A transfer allows a registration number to be moved from one vehicle to another. Only the registered keeper of a vehicle can apply to transfer its registration number. When a vehicle is registered with another registration number, that vehicle will have its existing registration number withdrawn unless you apply to transfer or retain it at the same time.

Retaining a registration number

A retention allows a registration number to be removed from a vehicle and held on a document.

You can retain a registration number for 10 years.

Only the registered keeper of a vehicle can apply to retain a registration number and choose to become the Grantee or give the details of someone else.

The Grantee is the one who has the right to the registration number. The Grantee has the right to assign (put on) the registration number to a vehicle registered in someone else's name. This person is known as a Nominee.

We will issue a 'Retention Document' (V778) to the Grantee. This will include details of:

- the registration number;
- the Nominee (if one is given in the application); and
- the date the registration number should be assigned by.

The Nominee has no right to the registration number until it is assigned to their vehicle.

Once the Grantee has assigned the registration number to their or their Nominee's vehicle, the right to the registration number goes to the registered keeper of that vehicle.

How to apply to transfer or retain a registration number

If you would like to take the number off a vehicle and keep it on a retention document for up to 10 years. You can do this online at www.gov.uk/keep-registration-number (the fee is £80).

You can also transfer the registration number onto another vehicle online at www.gov.uk/keep-registration-number (the fee is £80). You can complete the process by putting the registration number onto the vehicle immediately afterwards at www.gov.uk/put-registration-number-vehicle

Alternatively, you, as the registered keeper, will need to fill in form V317. This form contains more information about transferring or retaining a registration number. You can get the form from www.gov.uk/dvlaforms or from DVLA.

Registration numbers that cannot be transferred

Check your Vehicle Registration Certificate (V5C) before you apply, to make sure that the registration number can be transferred. If the V5C states that the registration number is non-transferable, you cannot transfer or retain it.

Registration numbers starting with 'Q'

If a vehicle has a registration number starting with 'Q' or 'QNI' prefix, that registration number cannot be transferred and must stay on the vehicle unless evidence of its age is found. In this case, you should send the evidence to DVLA who can then provide a replacement registration number appropriate to the age of the vehicle.

8. What if your right to assign or retain your registration number is due to end?

You must either assign the registration number or apply for an extension before this happens. Your V750 or V778 will tell you how to do this.

You will lose your right to the registration number if you act too late.

You can extend the right to a registration number for 10 years.

9. Can you add or change the Nominee's details on your Certificate of Entitlement or Retention Document?

Yes, as long as your Certificate or Document has not run out. Your V750 or V778 will tell you how to do this.

10. What if you no longer want to assign the registration number?

If you no longer want to assign the registration number you can apply for a refund of the assignment fee if you paid the assignment fee at the time you purchased or retained the registration number.

If you have a certificate valid for 10 years, you can apply for a refund before the expiry date of your V750 or V778 certificate. For any other certificate, you can apply for a refund within 6 years of its expiry date.

Once a certificate has expired, you lose the right to display the registration mark.

11. What if the vehicle is leased?

Only the vehicle's registered keeper can apply to transfer or retain a registration number. The leasing company (if they are the keeper) would have the right to transfer or retain the registration number. If you still want to assign a registration number on a leased vehicle, check with the leasing company that they agree to you doing so and that they are prepared to co-operate with transferring or retaining the registration number in the future.

12. What if your vehicle is stolen and not recovered?

If your vehicle is stolen and not recovered, after a year you can apply to have its registration number transferred to your replacement vehicle as long as certain conditions of the transfer scheme are met. In addition the following must also apply:

- the theft must have been reported to the police
- the theft has been on DVLA records for at least 12 months (the police should tell DVLA for you) but for no more than 3 years
- the vehicle had a valid MOT certificate when it was stolen
- the vehicle must have had valid vehicle tax at the time of theft.

To apply, or for more information, write to:

Personalised Registrations

DVLA

Swansea

SA99 1DS

You will need to give the registration number.

If your vehicle is recovered and you or your insurer decide to sell or destroy it, you'll need to apply to keep or transfer your registration number online at www.gov.uk/keep-registration-number or using form V317 before the vehicle is disposed of.

13. What if your vehicle is written off?

If your vehicle is written off, you can still apply to transfer or retain its registration number as long as:

- the vehicle is available to be inspected (we will also ask for an insurer's engineers report); and
- you can meet all the conditions of the transfer or retention schemes.

Important – if you want to transfer or retain the registration number you must make sure your insurers know that the vehicle must be made available for us to inspect. If your insurers settle your claim and sell the vehicle as salvage before the registration number is properly transferred or retained, it will pass with the vehicle to the new keeper and you will lose your right.

Once you have successfully transferred or retained your registration number from the written off vehicle, let your insurers know about the change of registration number and send them the replacement V5C. If your insurers intend to sell the write off as salvage, the vehicle must display the replacement registration number.

14. What if your vehicle no longer exists or has been scrapped?

Once a vehicle no longer exists its registration number is withdrawn.

If your vehicle has been scrapped, you will not be able to transfer its registration number. For more information you can visit www.gov.uk

15. What happens to the registration number if you export your vehicle?

By law you must tell us if you are taking your vehicle abroad for more than 12 months.

If you want to transfer or retain the registration number you must do so before the vehicle leaves the UK. You cannot apply once the vehicle is out of the country.

You should get advice from Customer Enquiries, well before the date the vehicle is being exported. Please phone 0300 790 6802. Lines are open between 8am and 7pm Monday to Friday, and between 8am and 2pm on Saturdays.

16. Can you keep the registration number if you want to rebuild your vehicle or convert it?

Not all registration numbers can be transferred. Your V5C will say if you can transfer the registration number. If you can you should consider:

- transferring it to another vehicle; or
- retaining it on a document before breaking up or carrying out any alterations or conversions. If you do not do this you may lose your right to the registration number.

For more information see Guidelines for the registration of rebuilt or radically altered vehicles and kit cars leaflet (INF26).

17. You have an old vehicle which is not registered at DVLA. Can you register the vehicle and transfer or retain its registration number?

It is possible for you to register the vehicle at DVLA, but you will not be able to transfer or retain the registration number.

For more details you can visit www.gov.uk or see leaflet How to register your 'old' vehicle (V848) which is available from DVLA.
