Introduction

Ofsted publishes quarterly statistics on the number of childcare providers registered with Ofsted on the Early Years Register and the Childcare Register, and the number of places offered by those registered on the Early Years Register. The analysis of movement in the childcare sector shows the number of providers that leave and join the sector and, at the local authority level, providers that remain active but move to another local authority.

Providers and places statistics show the position at the end of the quarter for all active providers. In the interactive publication, users may also select the end position at each month within the quarter. Charts show the number of providers by provision type, trends over time.

Key findings

The number of early years registered childcare places reached an estimated 1,314,252 at 30 September 2012. Places have increased by 0.4% over a 12 month period; a net increase of 4,886 places on the number registered at 30 September 2011.

A total of 95,980 childcare providers are registered with Ofsted at 30 September 2012, a small net increase of 21 providers since 30 June 2012. However, total provider numbers are 0.5% lower compared with the number registered at 30 September 2011.

Current quarter:

- The total number of registered providers remains very similar to the last quarter, despite 3.9% of those providers leaving the registers, as a similar number joined during the period.
- The total number of childcare providers changed by the smallest amount since the beginning of the Early Years Foundation Stage. A total of 3,723 providers joined the sector and 3,702 providers left.
- The overall number of registered childminders has decreased by 173. Providers of childcare on non-domestic premises have decreased by 66. The decrease in the two largest childcare provider types was offset by an increase of 258 home childcarers and 2 providers of childcare on domestic premises.
- The number of childminders not on the early years register has risen by 2.6%, which is a continuation of a trend seen over the last three quarters. However it's a sharp drop in the 14.4% increase of non-early years register childminders seen in the previous quarter. Despite this trend 97.7% of childminders remain on the early years register.
- The total number of registered early years places at 30 September 2012 is an estimated 1,314,252; a net increase of 594 places since 30 June 2012. Registered early years places increased for childcare on non-domestic and childcare on domestic premises but fell for childminders since the last quarter.

Provider Trends:

- The majority (60%) of childcare providers registered with Ofsted are childminders and almost a third (29%) of providers offer childcare on non-domestic premises. Although fewer in number, childcare on non-domestic premises are larger providers, accounting for 78.3% of the early years registered places. Childminders account for 21.5% of early years registered places.
- Childminder numbers are 1045 lower than 30 September 2011, currently 57,149. There has been a 0.3% decrease in the number of childminders during this quarter.
- Provider numbers for childcare on non-domestic premises has been declining since December 2008. There was a further fall of 66 during this quarter.
- Childcare on domestic premises accounts for less than 1% of registered childcare providers. These relatively small numbers have increased by two providers this quarter.

- Home childcarer numbers have been increasing since December 2008. This quarter there was a net increase of 258 (2.4%) since June 2012. The number of these providers has now reached 10,831.

Methodology

1. Registered places are the number of children that may attend the provision at any one time. Registered places are not the number of places occupied, nor the number of children who may benefit from receiving places through providers offering sessions at different times of the day. Place numbers are only collected for providers on the Early Years Register.
2. Providers are the number of providers registered with Ofsted at the end of the relevant period. These include providers on the Early Years and Childcare Registers.
3. Averages are used to estimate the number of places for a very small number of providers whose place numbers are not available at the time of the analysis. There may also be small discrepancies in totals due to rounding.
4. Joiners are the number of providers that have been registered with Ofsted during the period selected in the report. Most of these are new registrations, but figures also include providers that have re-activated registration or changed provider type or register. At the local authority or government office region, this may also include providers that have relocated into a new geographical area.
5. Leavers are the number of providers that have been edited in Ofsted's registration database to 'inactive' status during the period selected in the report. Most of these are resignations, where providers have left the register, but figures also include providers that have had registration cancelled or changed provider type or register. At the local authority or government office region, this may also include providers that have relocated out of a geographical area.
6. At the national level, the number of leavers and joiners reflect those who have left and joined the sector, while at the regional and local authority levels the statistics reflect those providers who have relocated as well. In order to capture geographical changes of providers, the joiners and leavers data are now extracted and postcodes compared to the Office for National Statistics (ONS) database on a daily basis.
7. Some providers have a protected status regarding their location, therefore no postcodes are extracted through the database. The geographical location of all providers is assigned according to the ONS database based on postcode data, rather than, for example, the local authority as recorded in the registration data. A small number of providers, less than 1%, have postcodes that are not recognised for other reasons, such as partial data or new postcode area not yet updated in the database. These providers are recorded under the heading 'no region' and are included in national figures.

Childcare on domestic premises have been excluded in the graph above, because of their small number relative to other childcare provision types.

¹ Register(s): Ofsted register care provided for children on two registers, the Early Years Register (EYR) and the Childcare Register, which has a compulsory (CCR) and voluntary (VCR) component. People can apply to join one register or both registers at the same time. Most childcare providers caring for children aged under eight must register with Ofsted unless the law says they are not required to do so. If a childcare provider is not required to register with Ofsted, then in some circumstances they may choose to do so by joining the voluntary part of the Childcare Register (VCR). ² Providers are the number of providers registered on the database at the at the end of the relevant period. As not all providers inform Ofsted that they have ceased provision, this number is likely to be higher than the actual number of providers.

³ Registered places are the number of children that may attend the provision at any one time. Registered places are not the number of places occupied, nor the number of children who may benefit from receiving places through providers offering sessions at different times of the day. Place numbers are only collected for providers on the Early Years Register. For these providers, the numbers show the total places available for children under eight. Averages are used for a very small number of providers whose place numbers are not available at the time of the analysis. There are very small discrepancies in totals due to rounding.

Regional breakdowns exclude providers whose postcode is not recognised in the Office for National Statistics (ONS) database or home childcarers who are registered to look after children in England but live outside the country. These providers are counted under 'No Region'.

Glossary

Childminder

This is a person who is registered to look after one or more children, to whom they are not related, for reward. Childminders work with no more than two other childminders or assistants.

They care for:

- children on domestic premises that are not usually the home of one of the children unless they care for children from more than two families wholly or mainly in the homes of the families
- at least one individual child for a total of more than two hours in any day. This is not necessarily a continuous period of time.

Childcare providers on domestic premises

These are people providing care on domestic premises with at least three other people. They can provide the care directly or employ people to work with them. The difference between childminding and childcare on domestic premises is the number of people involved. If four or more people look after children at any time they are providing childcare on domestic premises, not childminding.

Childcare providers on non-domestic premises

These are people providing care for individual children in premises that are not someone's home. These premises can range from converted houses to purpose built nurseries.

Home childcarers

Home childcarers care for children of any age up to their 18th birthday wholly or mainly in the home of a child being cared for, and care for children from no more than two families. They can only register on the voluntary part of the Childcare Register.

Registers

Under the Childcare Act 2006, childcare providers register on either or both of two registers:

- The Early Years Register, which is for providers who care for children from birth to the 31 August following their fifth birthday, and who must deliver the Early Years Foundation Stage
- The Childcare Register, which has two parts:
 - a compulsory part, for providers who care for children aged from the end of the Foundation Stage up to and including age seven
 - a voluntary part, for providers who care for children aged eight and over and those for whom registration is not compulsory, for example nannies.
