Background

1. It is a long-standing convention that each of the three armed services is represented on the Imperial War Museum (IWM) Board. General Kiszely's role is therefore to represent the British Army and to retain the Museum's link with that service. In this capacity he is able to advise IWM on Army collections and presentation of contemporary conflict. Sir John is also a member of the Museum's Audit Committee.
2. The IWM branches tell the story of people who have lived, fought and died in conflicts involving Britain and the Commonwealth since the First World War. IWM's unique Collections, made up of the everyday and the exceptional, reveal stories of people, places, ideas and events. Using these, IWM tells vivid personal stories and creates powerful physical experiences across its five museums that reflect the realities of war as both a destructive and creative force. IWM challenges people to look at conflict from different perspectives, enriching their understanding of the causes, course and consequences of war and its impact on people's lives.
3. IWM's five branches are IWM London, IWM's flagship branch with six floors of exhibitions and displays; IWM North, housed in an iconic award-winning building designed by Daniel Libeskind; IWM Duxford, a world renowned aviation museum and Britain's best preserved wartime airfield; Churchill War Rooms, housed in Churchill's secret headquarters below Whitehall; and the Second World War cruiser HMS Belfast.
